

CDC's National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases (NCIRD) Launches New Website

The Immunization Section is pleased to share with its immunization partners and colleagues the launch of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases (NCIRD) new website. The website is for national, state, and local immunization partners. The site has been restructured for ease of navigation and use. Users can more easily find resources and materials to help supplement vaccine conversations and educate parents, pregnant women, and adults, as well as health care professionals, all in one place. On the new site, you will find links to digital tools, social media content, drop-in matte articles, print materials, toolkits, videos, public service announcements (PSAs), and more. Explore what NCIRD now has to offer and share it with others. Please send any questions or suggestions for additional resources you would like to see posted to NCIRDwebteam@cdc.gov.

Please remember to distribute this information to colleagues, members, coalitions, and partners who provide or have an interest in immunizations. Also, please post this information prominently on your website. If you have any questions or need any additional information regarding vaccine recommendations, please contact Dearline Thomas-Brown, MPH, BSN, RN, Executive Community Health Nursing Director for the Immunization Section at 850-245-4342.
